

Director from Hajdudorog opinion

Having reviewed the provided lecture outline on interpersonal closeness, I would like to express my support for its relevance and importance. The session addressed practical aspects of building and maintaining close relationships, which are essential not only in personal life but also in educational and professional contexts.

The focus on fostering human connection is particularly valuable for students, as it equips them with essential social skills and strategies for effective communication. This knowledge will undoubtedly support their personal development and enhance their ability to engage in meaningful interactions. The lecture was both practical and necessary, providing students with tools that will benefit them in various aspects of their lives.

